

Fundraising Ideas

- My friends and I go to this bar often for drinks and dancing. I asked the bar owner if I could do a fundraiser one night and he agreed. We got gifts from local businesses and restaurants and then charged a cover of $10.00 which included a raffle ticket. People also could buy more raffle tickets for $5.00 each. I was able to reach my fundraising goal in one evening.
- I gave a series of parties at my house. I provided the refreshments and told all my friends what I was doing. At those parties, people gave me donations and I was able to raise over $1000 while having fun and socializing with my friends.
- I asked my boss if I could send out an email to my co workers about what I was doing and ask for support. She agreed and helped set up a central location in the company where people could drop off checks for my efforts.
- I had a house concert. A couple of friends of mine play music and volunteered to do a concert at my house. We charged $10 and raised $500 in one night.
- I got my local newspaper to do a story on what I was doing - that I was going to Utah to participate in the Climb for Life and that I was raising money for ovarian cancer research. They put my contact info in the article and that helped me to raise money.
